Brett Bailey is an Associate with the Litigation Practice group, focusing primarily on General Litigation. He practices out of the Firm's office in Denver, Colorado.

Brett brings a leadership to the law that few have. After receiving his bachelor's degree from the University of Florida, he spent four years leading a team of soldiers as a network operator in the U.S. Army. He took that leadership into the law where he advocated for disabled veterans by drafting briefs on the military discharge upgrade process and disability benefits compensation while earning his Juris Doctor from the University of Denver's Sturm College of Law. His leadership experience in the military makes him not afraid to tackle big issues for his clients.

Brett also has experience in conducting research for motions, briefs, and handling various civil litigation matters including the discovery process for attorneys and clients.

During his military service, he received the Army Commendation Medal with Combat Device; Afghanistan Campaign Medal; NATO Service Medal and was an honor graduate of the Basic Leadership Course of the U.S. Army.

Beyond the law, Brett likes to hike, ski, cheer on the Florida Gators and Miami Dolphins, and spend quality time with his fiancé and their two cats.
