Christopher F. Hoskins is a Member in the Equine, Construction, Health Care, and Manufacturing industry groups, focusing primarily on commercial litigation. He practices out of the Firm's office in Lexington, Kentucky.

Chris is proud to represent his home state through his position with the Firm representing racetracks, horse farms, owners and various businesses involved in Kentucky's signature industry. In addition, Chris regularly advises on various governmental, legislative, and regulatory matters in the equine industry.

Chris also practices in the Construction industry group, representing general contractors, construction managers, design professionals and others on construction projects. He advises them on all stages of a construction project or dispute involving litigation or contracts. In the Health Care industry, Chris has significant experience in representing hospitals, physicians, nurses, and other health care providers in complex, multi-party lawsuits. Additionally, Chris has successfully represented and defended attorneys in legal malpractice lawsuits.

Chris resides in Lexington, Kentucky, where he enjoys spending time giving back to the local community that has given so much to him. Currently, he serves on the boards of CASA of Lexington, Salvation Army of Central Kentucky, Kentucky Equine Education Project, and on the Junior Leadership Counsel for the Catholic Education Opportunities Foundation.
